Circle Sconce
by Daniel Shapiro

Contemporary

United States

At the center of the Circle Sconce is an unglazed, over-fired stoneware dome, proudly displaying the raw materials that create the piece. The rough, unglazed dome is contrasted with smooth, glazed tubing that encircles the sconce, creating a poetic contrast of raw and polished surfaces. The ends of the tubes are capped by two ceramic light housings containing recessed candelabra bulbs. The bulbs cast warm, indirect light on the wall and the piece itself, making it the perfect bedside lamp.
